THE ADJUTANT GENERAL
OF
WEST VIRGINIA
1921-22

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

December 1, 1922.

HON. EPHRAIM F. MORGAN,
Governor, West Virginia,
Charleston.

SIR:

I have the honor to submit the following report for the period ending September 30, 1923:

“December 1, 1922.

When the duties of the office were assumed, the State had no National Guard. A force of Enrolled Militia located at Williamson, W. Va., whose term of enlistment would expire on August 27, 1921, was the only military force existent. From this force Company “I” was recruited, and on September 21 was inspected and accepted by the Federal authorities.

During this period, a force of from 6,000 to 8,000 miners, armed and with complete organization for subsistence had assembled near Marmet and marched overland to Blair and attacked the Sheriff of Logan County and the volunteer forces gathered by him. The marchers were stopped and held at Blair and at the head of Crooked Creek, until Federal troops arrived and replaced the volunteer defenders.

Following this trouble companies were recruited in Logan, Welch, Charleston, St. Albans, Beckley, Mt. Hope, Parsons, Mullens, Pt. Pleasant and Clendenin, now consisting of 56 officers and 1039 enlisted men, assigned to 17 units of Infantry, and one unit of Military Police.

The allocation of troops by the Militia Bureau for the year 1921 was originally.

For Division Troops

1 Regiment of Infantry

For Corps Troops

1 Artillery Battalion (155 Howitzer)

1 Anti-aircraft Machine Gun Battalion

1 Military Police Battalion

1 Service Battalion

Because of lack of appropriation by Congress this allocation was reduced to the Regiment of Infantry, but Company "A," 104th Military Police Battalion having been organized, the State has been permitted to retain it.

The units were organized in accordance with the National Defense Act, which requires a minimum of 50 enlisted men for the first six months after recognition and a minimum of 65 enlisted after that time. The physical and mental requirements are the same as those of the Regular Army, so that if called into Federal service none will be lost because of physical or mental infirmity. The personnel of the units is of a very high class and all the officers, except one, and a majority of the enlisted men were in the service during the World War.

The scheme of instruction for 1922 included (1) a school of instruction for officers, at Charleston, January 19 and 20; (2) a school of instruction for officers and enlisted men at Nitro, W. Va., June 19 to 22 inclusive, and (3) a period of Field Training at Camp Knox, Kentucky, from August 5 to August 20, inclusive, and arrangements therefor were completed; but, owing to conditions existing at that time, it was deemed inexpedient to go to Camp Knox and permission was obtained from the Secretary of War, through the Militia Bureau and the Corps Area Commander, to hold the field training in two camps, simultaneously, during the above period, one at Nitro, W. Va., Camp Morgan, under command of Col. William E. Eubank, in which the Headquarters Company, Service Company (less band section, one-half period), Howitzer Company, Headquarters Company 2nd Battalion, Companies E, F, G, H, I, K, and M participated, and one at Barrackville, W. Va., Camp Reed, under command of Lt. Col. Tom C. Davis, in which Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, Companies A, B, C, D, Band Section of Service Company, for one-half period, 150th Infantry and Company A, 104th Military Police Battalion participated.

These schools and the Field Camp of Instruction were productive of much good. The high state of discipline, the manner in which the officers and enlisted men absorbed the instruction, and the spirit in which the work was carried on was a revelation to the Instructors on duty at the camps and secured high commendation from them and from Major General G. W. Reed who made a personal visit of inspection to both camps.

On July 10, this office was advised by the Chief, Militia Bureau, that no funds would be available to pay the expenses of any rifle teams to compete at Camp Perry, and preparations for selecting and developing a rifle team for the State was abandoned. On August 21, we were advised that if the State could save from its allotment of funds for Field Camps of Instruction enough to pay the expenses of rifle teams the matches at Camp Perry would be possible, and that the saving could be applied for that purpose. Enough was saved by West Virginia, and a team selected to represent the State. There was no time in which to hold a competition or practice, as was done prior to 1916, but each organization was asked to send a representative who gave promise of being able to fairly represent the State. The members selected assembled at Charleston, September 1, and left the same day for Camp Perry, returning September 30 after having beaten out ten teams on the final shoot, and several members having won prizes in open competition. I am proud of the result attained under such adverse circumstances. A list of the team and the scores made is attached to this report. It is believed, with the progress made, that from this time other States will have to "look to their laurels."

As soon as our State started organizing units, the War Department arranged to furnish us with officers of the Army as Instructors. Major W. H. Gullion was detailed first and followed one week later by Colonel F. B. Shaw, who rendered us valuable assistance in organizing and instructing the several units. The detail was in a short time increased, Captains Lewis Simons and F. R. Brockschink and four regular army Sergeants reporting for duty. These officers and men supervise the instruction and visit the several units to note their progress and give such instruction as needed.

On July 15, 1922, Colonel Shaw was transferred to the Corps Area Headquarters and placed in charge of the National Guard affairs for the Area.

The experience of the World War taught that the National Guard is a real asset and that the time and money spent in its development was well spent and the results obtained were very gratifying, in spite of the fact that every obstacle possible was thrown in the Guardsmans path, when war was first declared.

In fact the 2nd Regiment W. V. N. G., with 50 officers and 973 men well trained and hardened by nine months continuous service, six months of which was spent in the Mexican Border Service, was mustered out at Huntington, West Virginia, on March 24 and sent to home stations, only to be called out again on April 2.

At this time conditions have changed and a spirit of helpfulness and co-operation seems to pervade the Army and the National Guard is receiving marked attention and assistance.

Our National Guard requires two actions at the hands of the Legislature. (1) Funds for current expenses and (2) armories for the care of equipment and for drill purposes for the units; and a provision for armories would reduce materially the annual appropriation for expense. The rentals of buildings for use of troops now amount to more than twenty thousand dollars, and will be more than doubled when we have completed the allotment of troops for 1923. This enormous sum is being spent for buildings that are only in part suitable for armory purposes, and such as do not offer any opportunity for social development or in any manner assist in making a National Guard unit the point of interest in the community, and thus keeping before the best elements of the community the benefit and necessities of the Nation's second line of defense. Beg to suggest that this phase of the Guard's need be given special attention. That a building program be inaugurated that will in a very few years secure to the State suitable buildings and stop the ceaseless rental expense, and, as our State continues to develop, these properties will increase in value year after year, as our rentals are now increasing yearly.

On June 27, 1922, the Sheriff of Tucker County called on the Commanding Officer of Company A, 104th Military Police Battalion to assist him in maintaining Law and Order because of a march of armed men at Thomas, West Virginia. The command reported and was on duty July 2. The only casualties was an officer and an enlisted man injured when a coach on which they were returning to Parsons, with prisoners, left the track and rolled down the hill about 50 feet. Lieut. John C. Plumb received internal injuries, and Sgt. Walter E. Price, leg broken above the ankle.

On June 29, Companies C and D, 150th Infantry were called out and sent to Dry Branch, West Virginia, to prevent a threatened disturbance near that point. No disturbance took place and the Companies returned to the armory and were dismissed June 30.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN H. CHARNOCK,

Adjutant General.

General Order

No. 15.

1. The following schedule of training is published for the information and guidance of the Infantry units of the West Virginia National Guard. It is enjoined upon all commanders to follow it in detail, for the following reasons:

(a) It assures uniform instruction and advancement. In actual experience this method has produced excellent results—and in the minimum of time.

(b) It relieves the Regimental, Battalion and Company Commander of the many hours' work involved in preparing a good schedule, and leaves these hours available for a course of study which will be prescribed, with a view of fitting them for their present grades and preparing them for future promotion.

2. The schedule is for 13 weeks and covers the "School of the Soldier" training for all units of an Infantry Regiment. In connection with later schedules for Squad and Platoon training and in the Special Arms, which will begin February 1, 1922, this will fit all units to assemble in Battalion and Regiment for the two weeks in camp next summer, and start the more advanced training.

3. Due to the fact that the West Virginia National Guard was not organized and did not start training at the beginning of the season, and because it is not desired to give that or any other excuse for inferior appearance when in camp next summer with others troops, this schedule calls for two hours training per week. It is expected that all units will take at least that amount—and as much more as circumstances will permit. Units hereafter organized will need even more, as the year's training schedule calls for 192 hours—including the 88 hours at camp.

By order of THE GOVERNOR.

J. H. CHARNOCK,
Adjutant General.

[G. O. No. 16]

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA,
Charleston, October 24, 1921.

General Order

No. 16

The following requirements, prescribed by the Senior Federal Instructor, West Virginia National Guard, for correspondence courses, armory schools and for qualifications for armory pay by certain officers, are approved and hereby published for the information and guidance of all concerned.

By order of THE GOVERNOR.

J. H. CHARNOCK.

Adjutant General.

ARMORY DRILL PAY.

1. In order to entitle officers to armory drill pay whose drill attendance is not regularly recorded on the weekly drill record (Form 367-b) and to furnish a basis for the certificates of the Federal Instructor and the National Guard Officers who must vouch for the correctness of the pay rolls, the following will be required, pursuant to National Guard Regulations and Militia Bureau Circular Letters No. 50, 1920, and No. 51, 1921:

(a) At the end of each period for which pay rolls are prepared, each officer, entitled to armory drill pay who is not regularly attached to some unit for drill, will forward to the officer who is to sign the roll upon which his name is borne, a sworn statement giving in detail the date, duration and character of the military duty performed by him for which he is entitled to pay during the period. The National Guard officer who signs the roll upon which has been entered the data contained in the affidavit of the individual officer, will submit the affidavit to the Federal Instructor when he submits the pay roll and insert sheet. Affidavit should be similar to the following:

I hereby certify and solemnly swear, that I have performed the following military duties in the period between and

(b) It will be the duty of all officers to see that their attendance at armory drill and instruction is duly reported as required by these regulations. (Par. 503 N. G. Regs., 1919.)

(c) When the services of an officer do not continue throughout the whole period, the affidavit will be submitted for that portion for which pay is due. No officer can be paid unless a sworn statement is submitted showing his monthly record of drill attendance or other military work.

(d) The nature of the work required of different officers, who do not attend armory drills or study the subjects prescribed in the regular correspondence courses, is found in M. B. Cir. Letter No. 50, 1920, and No. 51, 1921; Pars. 491-504, and Par. 302 (Pages 83-92) N. G. Regs., 1919. The latter paragraph is especially important during the first year after tentative Federal recognition, as it shows the subjects of the examination for final Federal recognition. Par. 114 N. G. Regs. 1919, gives further information concerning the duties of the State Surgeon.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES.

2. (a) The following subjects are prescribed for the school year 1921-22 for all officers except Medical Officers:

Subjects	Text Books	Period
Administration	S. R. 57 (See W. D. Doc. 1002 for question), Cir. No. 1 to No. 3, M. B., W. D. 1920 and Army Regs. (See W. D. Doc. 974)	Nov. 1 to Dec. 31/21
Military Law	Manual for Courts-Martial. (See W. D. Doc. 974)	Jan. 1 to Mar. 31/22
Administration	National Guard Regulations. (See W. D. Doc. 974)	Apr. 1 to June 30/22

(b) As far as practicable, the Federal Instructor will publish instruction bulletins on the subjects studied and hold written examinations at the close of the period designated for each subject. The examinations will be of such a nature as to require the use of blank forms, etc., and the use of the text books in answering the questions will be allowed.

(c) Certificates of proficiency will be given for those subjects in which examinations are successfully passed.

ARMORY SCHOOLS.

3. (a) Armory schools for Non-commissioned Officers and selected Privates are prescribed, pursuant to Par. 504 N. G. Regs. It is suggested that they be held one night per week, other than the drill night, if possible.

(b) In addition to instruction in the manual for special weapons of different units, Physical Training (W. D. Doc. 436) Infantry Drill (W. D. Docs. 953 and 844) Signalling (W. D. Doc. 500) and Guard Duty (W. D. Doc. 466) should be taught.

(c) Medical Department Non-commissioned Officers and Privates should have instruction in Mason's Hand Book for Sanitary Troops and W. D. Docs. 504 and 662.

(d) Certificates of proficiency should be given by organization commanders for those subjects in which a thorough test is successfully passed.

General Order

No. 17

Pursuant to Pars. 832-914 N. G. Regulations, 1919, to Army Regulations and to Circular Letters of the Militia Bureau, the following instructions for the care of public property and for other interior economy of organizations of the National Guard of this State are published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

1. Individuals will be required to sign a receipt for every article of equipment, clothing, publication and other public property issued to them. (A convenient method is to have a large sheet of paper fastened on a board with columns ruled for the different articles, appearing at the top of the sheet. The names of individuals on the left of the sheet, their signatures being on the same lines on the right.)

2. Shoes, clothing and equipment will be fitted to the men under personal direction of the organization commander.

3. Pistols, ammunition, overcoats, blankets, underwear, housewives, toilet articles, wire cutters, intrenching tools and similar articles will not be issued until needed for camp or active duty. Frequent count should be made of such articles and every possible precaution taken for their safekeeping by accountable and responsible officers.

4. Blankets, overcoats and woolen uniforms and other woolen articles when not in use must be packed in moth balls or other preparations to prevent destruction by moths.

5. All arm chests and packing boxes will be kept on hand at armories for emergencies, for packing articles not in use and for shipping articles to and from camp.

6. Blankets will not be unpacked for the purpose of instruction in making the "Pack," as the shelter half, rain coat and other articles can be utilized for that purpose.

7. Enlisted men will not take their arms apart except by permission from a Commissioned officer under the proper supervision and only in the manner prescribed in the descriptive pamphlet of arms issued by the Ordnance Department (W. D. Doc. No. 987).

8. In addition to having small arms locked in arm lockers, arms racks and well-secured storerooms, they, as well as other property liable to theft should be kept hidden from public view and difficult to find or remove.

9. If an article of U. S. property be lost, damaged or destroyed by negligence or fault of an officer or enlisted man he shall be required to pay the value thereof or the cost of necessary repairs.

10. Reasonable care cannot be considered as having been exercised for the safety of property when it appears that the loss, damage, destruction or theft was due to carelessness, willful neglect or failure to exercise ordinary foresight.

No. 22

The following extract of "Suggestions for Training the National Guard," a publication of the Militia Bureau, Washington, amended to conform to the latest Tables of Organization, is published for the information and guidance of the National Guard of West Virginia.

By order of THE GOVERNOR.

JOHN H. CHARNOCK,

Adjutant General.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TRAINING THE NATIONAL GUARD

Pending the issuance of text books covering the late developments in war, and the revision of our regular manuals, the following suggestions are made concerning the training of the National Guard:

1. To be effective in time of war, military training must be uniform throughout and must conform to certain basic principles possessing varying degrees of importance. A due sense of proportion of these principles and a full appreciation of the relative merits of these qualities constituting the standard to which the Army must attain are expected of all commanding officers.

(a) Patriotism is of the first importance. An absolute and unqualified devotion to the welfare and success of our country is an indispensable prerequisite that has always constituted the soul of our Army.

(b) The methods to be employed must remain or become distinctly our own.

(c) All instructions must contemplate the assumption of a vigorous offensive. This purpose will be emphasized in every phrase of training until it becomes a settled habit of thought.

(d) Time is important, but proficiency is the most important factor in all training.

(e) Professional knowledge leads to the greatest efficiency when intelligently applied in actual practice.

(f) The general principles governing combat remain unchanged in their essence. The recent war has developed special features which involve special phases of training, but the undamental ideals enunciated in our Drill Regulations, Small Arms Firing Manual, Field Service Regulations and other service manuals remain the guide for both officers and soldiers and constitute the standard by which their efficiency is to be measured, except as modified in detail by instructions.

(g) Self-respect, self-reliance and resourcefulness are qualities in a large measure inherent in our soldiers and should be cultivated to the fullest extent in their training.

(h) All officers and soldiers should realize that at no time in our history has discipline been so important; therefore, discipline of the highest order must be exacted at all times. The standards of an American Army should be those of the United States Military Academy. The rigid attention, upright bearing, attention to detail, uncomplaining obedience to instructions required of the cadet should be required of every officer and soldiers of our Armies. Failure to attain such discipline will be treated as lack of capacity on the part of a commander to create in the subordinate that intensity of purpose and willing acceptance of hardships which are necessary to success in battle.

In striving to secure proper standards of discipline, officers will not lose sight of their personal obligation to provide for the comfort of their men. No proper opportunity should be lost to improve their condition and surroundings and create a spirit of contentment and confidence in the future. Every effort must be made to preserve at all times the highest possible morale, the external sign of discipline.

(i) Training should be based on developing sound leadership in succession in the squad and section, the platoon, the company and finally in the higher units. To this end commanders should be required to lead their respective units in person in the most energetic manner. As far as possible the integrity of these units should be preserved in quarters, on the march and in combat. In making details this principal should be rigorously enforced and responsibility for satisfactory performance should always rest with the leader of the unit concerned.

(j) As soon as proficiency in elementary methods is attained, the applicatory system of training should be employed. All tactical exercises should be based on an assumed situation and responsible officers will require their subordinates to dispose their troops in accordance with the situation assumed. The adoption of "normal methods" of attack or defense which limit the use of troops to fixed formations is prohibited.

(k) Each tactical exercise should be followed by a short critique to be conducted, if practicable, on the ground on which the exercise took place.

The necessary umpires should be designated by the commander of the next higher unit; the battalion commander for company problems, the regimental commander for battalion problems, etc.

(1) Physical Development. For the work that will be required of the men, physical strength and endurance are absolutely essential. The average man before being carefully trained is unfit for the work. Physical training is more essential than in previous years. To attain this a man should first be put through a series of "setting up exercises" to loosen up the muscles and give him control of himself. This should be followed by more strenuous work, gradually increased and, when possible, should be had daily. Frequent short drills are better than the same time is long periods. Running, running in a crouching position, hurdling, running over rough ground in and out of trenches and holes, etc., is an essential part of the training. This in addition to the work in other drills.

All sports in which the combative element enters should be strongly encouraged, such as boxing, wrestling and football.

(m) Personal Hygiene and First Aid. These must be carefully taught. Regimental surgeons should supervise this instruction and see that it is properly done.

2. Duties of regimental, battalion and company commanders. The Instructor prepares schedules of training covering prescribed periods of time, and these will be published by the Adjutant General for the guidance of the unit commanders.

The duty of seeing that the prescribed instruction is carried out lies with the regimental commander and his field officers, and with this end in view they should personally observe the instruction which is being given to the companies. They should, however, carefully refrain from interfering with any legitimate methods which is producing results, remembering that no two men will proceed along exactly the same lines. By interference superiors not only destroy initiative, but also weaken the authority of the subordinate commander over his men. Interference is justified only when such commander fails to follow the course of instruction prescribed, displays ignorance, or shows such a lack of judgment in his methods as to render it certain that the results desired will not be accomplished. This does not mean that a suggestion from a superior officer should not be made or followed, but such suggestion should be carefully considered and only made when it is certain better results will follow its adoption.

3. Having received a schedule of instruction, the company commander should lay his plans covering all details of the subject not prescribed by higher authority. Recruits and other ill-instructed men should be grouped together and assigned for instruction to a specially qualified officer or non-commissioned officer. The principles and methods as enunciated in Training Circular No. 8, War Department, 1918, on Standards and Tests, and methods of instruction, Part II, as an aid in the quick training of infantry, should be impressed upon all subordinate commanders. Each drill should be governed by a schedule showing the subjects assigned to each group and the corresponding allowance of time.

The captain should supervise the instruction of the various groups, making necessary corrections and suggestions.

4. Normally, in the National Guard, armory drills cover a period of at least one and one-half hours, while field training should cover eight hours a day for not less than fifteen days; a total of one hundred ninety-two hours drills per year.

5. It is desirable that provision be made for a sand table, a map for map problems, and some device to serve as a target in instruction in fire direction. A rough sketch on paper or on a blackboard on a scale of about 12 inches to the mile will serve for map problems, but a relief map is the best device for practical instruction. A board arranged so that it can be raised and lowered and having painted on it a line of prone silhouettes makes a good target. Every headquarters, machine gun, and service company should have one or more wooden horses so constructed as to permit of saddling, bridling and harnessing.

6. It is deemed advisable to profit by all lessons of the late war, but it should be borne in mind that the present methods will be greatly changed before the next war. The future war is the war for which preparation should now be made.

7. The failure of men to carry out their orders implicitly in an attack means unnecessary heavy losses, if not absolute failure. It is found that only thoroughly disciplined troops can carry out a modern attack where every step must be taken in accordance with a careful schedule. The first great step then in fitting troops for service in war is to inculcate this spirit of discipline.

This can be done:

(a) By every officer setting a proper example for those below him in rank, of promptly and cheerfully obeying orders and regulations, by a careful and exact performance of every duty and by exacting the same of all subordinates.

(b) Dress and military courtesies: If men are allowed to be sloppy and untidy in dress, slipshod and careless about rendering courtesies, the military spirit is lost and the command remains undisciplined.

(c) Precision and snap in drill: This must be insisted on. Movements must be executed exactly as prescribed. For example, in executing right front into line from column of squads, it must be insisted that the corporal so conduct his squad that it comes exactly to its place without closing in after halting; that the command halt is given as a foot strikes the ground; that pieces all come down together, etc. All other movements must be executed with the same precision.

Never allow a movement to drag; "snap" is necessary; increase rather than decrease the cadence. Most close order drill is for disciplinary purposes. If done with precision and snap the object is attained; if not, the more you have of it the worse the command. Men become confirmed in doing things only approximately as told.

The methods used in the recent training camps give splendid results in "snap" and precision in drill and should be utilized to fullest extent. The particulars are quickly stated as follows: The instructor directs "give command and execute (1) squad (2) halt" with correct cadence between "squad" and "halt," then adds in the proper cadence "command." The entire squad gives the command in unison "(1) squad (2) halt (3) one (4) two," all in perfect cadence and executing the movement with the count. The same system can be applied to all marching and to the manual of arms. This teaches not only the proper method of giving a command, but emphasizes strongly cadence, snap and precision.

(d) Leaders must know their work. There must be no hesitation, commands must be given correctly and with snap. Leaders must treat all subordinates with courtesy, correct reasonable mistakes without harshness, give clear and reasonable explanations, show men HOW. When men fail through persistent carelessness, inattention or wilfulness, then use as drastic measures as necessary. Leaders must insist that all subordinates do their work properly, but they must set the example themselves.

(e) Cultivate esprit de corps, pride in the organization, and in the subdivisions even to the smallest. Competitive contests between smaller units are of great advantage.

(f) The ultimate object of all instruction being field service efficiency field maneuvers and field firing should be considered as the culmination of previous training and the test of its thoroughness.

(g) The efficiency of the squad, including its leader, is the basis of efficiency and this efficiency in turn depends on the thoroughness of the training of individual members of this unit.

(h) The efficiency of every command depends on the efficiency of the units or teams composing it. As each team in a large command must be under the direct control of its immediate chief, it is evident that such chief should have all possible charge of the instruction of his team. Officers must, however, give personal attention to individual instruction and to that of the squad and platoon in order that the training may proceed along right lines and due progress be made. Authority and responsibility should exist in equal degree. From such a system there should result not only suitable instruction of the team, but also comradeship among the individual members, pride in the team as a unit and that confidence and habit of command on the part of the leader so necessary to efficient leadership.

8. Drill movements are of two general classes—first, drills of precision, and second, maneuver and combat exercises.

The precise movements of the manual of arms and close-order drill are not for the purpose of teaching men how to get about on the battlefield. They will hardly be used there at all. One of the principal objects is to train the soldiers' mind and bodies to HABITS of precise, unhesitating obedience to the will of the leader so that in the stress of battle they will obey without conscious effort, mechanically, automatically, as the easiest and most natural line of action.

Maneuver and combat exercises are intended for instruction in the proper handling of troops in campaign and on the battlefield. There should be rigid adherence to orders and instructions.

9. It is hardly possible properly to conduct a drill or exercise without special forethought and preparation for that particular drill or exercise. After each drill or exercise the specific work for the next one should be announced, so that leaders may have time to prepare themselves.

The drill or exercise should be made interesting, not only by variety, which is necessary in order not to exhaust the soldier's attention by straining it too long on one subject, but also by comments on the part of leaders, continued throughout the drill and directed toward those elements whose performance is unusually good or bad.

(a) There must be a definite and progressive plan and schedule of instruction. Every course of instruction should embrace certain definitely prescribed subjects and be for a definite period in order to unify instruction, prevent unnecessary repetition and use the available time to the best advantage. On the completion of the prescribed course of theoretical instruction all study should not cease, but sufficient post-graduate work should follow to broaden the student's professional horizon and keep him in touch with new methods and ideas.

(b) Officers and noncommissioned officers of each grade should be competent to take up the duties of the next higher grade. Military efficiency can only be attained through competent and instructed officers and noncommissioned officers.

(c) Lectures are valuable aids in military training. Those to enlisted men should be about one-half hour long; to officers they may be longer. The number of lectures on any particular subject will depend upon its nature. They should be delivered by those specially qualified on the particular subjects. The lecture meetings should be as informal as is consistent with discipline; questions and discussions should be arranged. The appropriate use of maps, diagrams and illustrations, including moving pictures, is advantageous.

A list of general subjects for lectures is given hereafter. (Page 21.)

10. Every officer who intends to perfect himself as an officer of the National Guard should be familiar with the following texts:

1—Manual for Noncommissioned Officers and Privates and Waldron's Platoon Training, Parts I and II.

2—Field Service Regulations, corrected to April, 1917.

3—Military Law.

4—Military Hygiene and First Aid.

5—Document 882, War Department, Military Protection.

6—Small Arms Firing Manual.

7—Army Regulations, corrected to 1917, and Changes.

8—Special Regulations No. 57, Company Administration, A. G. O.

NOTE: The forms enumerated in Section VIII, War Department

Special Regulations, No. 57, 1919, should be mastered by all officers of the National Guard.

The above can well be considered a basic course for all officers of the National Guard. From this point the different arms should branch off into their proper special courses of instruction.

A. FOR INFANTRY.

11. A thoroughly trained infantry soldier today is an expert with the rifle, rifle grenade, hand grenade, automatic rifle, machine gun, bayonet and gas, and the more thorough his training in these specialties, the greater his value to the organization. The sister arm, artillery, batters and destroys, while the infantry advances, seizes and holds.

12. Infantry officers can not be too well informed concerning artillery. Each officer of infantry should know the aid which his own artillery can render and the limitations of that aid. He should also be informed of the opposition which the enemy's artillery will be capable of developing. Infantry officers should carefully study the system of fire used by the enemy and then endeavor by suitable formations and movements to minimize the loss of their own troops while under enemy artillery fire. In other words, they must outguess the enemy's artillery officers while making use of every advantage offered by their own artillery. Similar conditions exist whenever any other arm is associated with infantry, such as cavalry, tank corps, machine-guns, aeroplanes, etc.

13. Basis of Infantry Training. The training of infantry is based on the subjects covered in Infantry Drill Regulations (I. D. R.), Field Service Regulations (F. S. R.), Manual for Noncommissioned Officers and Privates (M. N. C. O.), Small Arms Firing Manual (S. A. F. M.), and Manual Physical Training (M. P. T.), and in pamphlets issued from time to time by the War Department in accordance with developments in the art of war.

15. Drill. Drill, close and combat order, must be thoroughly taught. Precision and snap are essential.

In the combat order care must be taken to carefully explain the reasons for what is done. After the mechanism of combat order is thoroughly learned, such exercise should then be the solution of a tactical problem, at first against an imaginary foe and later, units working against each other. In the second case the next higher commander should prepare the problem and act as umpire.

After every exercise there must be a critique, all errors pointed out, good work commended and the reasons for the comments should be given.

16. Intrenching. Earth work is an almost daily occurrence in the soldier's life. A successful attack may often be of no value unless men can promptly get cover by intrenching and at all times lives will be unnecessarily lost if men cannot efficiently use intrenching tools. Many, if not most of our men, have never used a pick and shovel. All must be taught to use them efficiently under the varying conditions that may arise, as when close together, stooping, etc.

17. Minor Tactics. Minor tactics for infantry must receive very careful attention. Experience has proven its great importance. While battles cover long fronts and are carried on by large bodies, locally there constantly arise minor combats, "strong points" that must be captured by a platoon, company or battalion. Flanks that must be covered by small units up to a battalion.

Outpost, patrolling, advance and rear guard work are important.

To properly teach minor tactics requires much careful work.

18. "Bullet and Bayonet." The rifle and the bayonet are the principal weapons of the infantry soldier. He will be trained to a high degree of skill as a marksman, both on the target range and in field firing. An aggressive spirit must be developed until the soldier feels himself, as a bayonet fighter, invincible in battle.

The soldier's practice must be such as to make proper aiming and trigger pull a fixed habit, for only when such is the case will he do it properly under the stress of battle. Position and aiming drill is important and if possible should be taken from ten to fifteen minutes daily. The training in rapid loading is important. Gallery practice should begin as soon as the men are far enough advanced. This drill is important in that it stimulates interest, forms fixed habits and offers a means whereby the preliminary instruction can be checked. The regular course of target practice should be held. Every opportunity should be grasped to have as much target practice as possible.

The bayonet is almost as important as the bullet. Bayonet fighting must be carefully taught. The aggressive spirit must be inculcated and the man impressed with the idea that he is superior to the enemy in bayonet fighting. Much practice must be given in running the offensive course, combining the "bullet and bayonet". Aim to secure speed and accuracy.

19. Automatic Rifles. One of the most important infantry weapons is the automatic rifle. The men armed with the automatic rifle should be highly trained in its nomenclature, mechanism, tactical use, etc. All the other men in the company should know how to load and fire an automatic rifle. A correct tactical use of automatic rifles in conjunction with the other company arms is essential. The men armed with the automatic rifle should be of sturdy build on account of the weight of the ammunition.

20. Rifle Grenades. All men should be familiar with the method of firing rifle grenades, and the tactical use of this class of fire. The rifle grenadiers should be highly trained and made to appreciate that the maximum tactical efficiency can only be attained in the proper co-operation with the other groups in the platoon. The rifle grenadiers should be of sturdy build on account of the weight of the ammunition.

21. Grenades. All the men should have some practice throwing grenades. Too much time should not be given to this work; it is of secondary importance. In peace time grenade practice will be confined to work with dummies except where experienced instructors are available and safety devices perfected.

22. Signals. All officers and noncommissioned officers of a company must know the signals prescribed in paragraphs 43 to 47 inclusive, Infantry Drill Regulations.

23. Noncommissioned Officers. Warfare makes a heavy demand on the infantry noncommissioned officers and requires in them a higher standard of efficiency and training. The time available to develop them, particularly the sergeants, is very short and therefore intensified means must be employed to secure the desired results.

To give sergeants the proper prestige, their position should be elevated in every possible way by segregation, by privileges, by participation in the administration and training of their units, etc., in order that they may be made to feel the responsibility and obligation imposed on them and so that other enlisted men will appreciate and recognize their authority and power to command.

Special courses of instruction, theoretical and practical, should be created for them from the beginning and consistently maintained throughout the period of instruction.

24. Methods of Training. A method of training the technical groups of the companies has been created which makes the battalion the basis of training instead of the company. A suitable number of officers and noncommissioned officers are selected from the battalion as a corps of instructors for the subjects selected for battalion instruction, viz.: bayonet and physical training, automatic rifles, rifle grenades, musketry, grenades and field engineering. The companies of the battalion or their technical groups receive in turn instruction in the specialty from the corps of instructors in charge of that subject.

This system enables the battalion commanders to select the most competent officers and noncommissioned officers from the entire battalion to conduct the training of any given specialty and it results in giving all the companies the highest degree of training of which the instructing personnel of the battalion is capable. As well, a uniformity of training is obtained for all the companies, which is most desirable. Wherever a battalion is stationed together it is recommended that instruction by battalion be imparted.

Such instruction should take up but a small part of each drill. During the remainder of the time, the platoon and company officers instruct their organizations in drill, tactical training, target practice, minor tactics, etc.

Under some conditions, different features of the tactical training may be better handled under regimental, brigade or even division supervision.

25. Schools. Schools for officers and noncommissioned officers should be maintained. In these schools the work must be first on the authorized manuals, Infantry Drill Regulations and Field Service Regulation.

As material and instructors become available classes should be formed in each State to train officers and noncommissioned officers as instructors, or selected men should be sent to the service schools in the permanent establishment in order to develop suitable instructors in the National Guard.

26. Headquarters Company. The training of the specialists in the headquarters company of the infantry regiments, as given in the Tables of Organization will require careful thought and effort. They must be trained for their special work.

27. Machine Gun Companies. The machine-gun companies must be trained, in addition to the handling of their guns, in field engineering, throwing grenades and especially physical drill.

28. Service Company. The training of the specialists (paper work, supplies, transportation, band) requires a maximum of the time available, with only enough basic military training for purposes of discipline, etc.

29. The following schedule is a guide for three years of infantry training in the National Guard. The subjects enumerated herein should be covered. It is based on a minimum of forty-eight drills of one and one-half hours each, totaling seventy-two hours armory instruction, and at least fifteen days field training, eight hours per day, totaling one hundred and twenty hours; total instruction period one hundred and ninety-two hours.

31. B. SCHEDULE OF DRILL AND INSTRUCTION PRESCRIBED FOR OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN OF THE FIELD ARTILLERY.
OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

As the instruction required to be given a battery of field artillery, providing each soldier therein is to be trained as an efficient artilleryman, is far greater than can be accomplished in forty-eight (48) drill periods of 1½ hours each, it will be necessary at the outset to specialize to a great extent and to have schools for officers and non-commissioned officers with additional drills and periods of instruction.

The services of the sergeant-instructor will be used to the fullest extent to assist in inspections and to impart instruction at odd times. Keeping in mind the object of the creation of the organization, much will depend upon the interest and initiative of the commanding officer of the organization.

As a general proposition, as soon as a soldier has acquired a proficiency in his special branch a part of his time should be spent in acquiring a working knowledge of all other subjects he must learn in order to become an all around field artilleryman.

From the beginning officers and non-commissioned officers must work with one idea; they must get together and work together; there must be intelligent co-operation and team work. They must be imbued, and must imbue all under their control, with the idea of loyalty to their country, their state, their superior officers and their organization.

An effort should be made to qualify every member for a warrant as a non-commissioned officer, and, if possible, every non-commissioned officer for a commission as an officer, in case it becomes necessary to call into service another large military force for governmental use.

The interest of the officers and men of the battery will largely depend upon the forethought of the commanding officer, and, markedly, upon the ability, knowledge, interest and snap of the non-commissioned officers.

As the time limit for instruction is so short, everything must be made to move with pre-arranged thoroughness and with snap. Everything must have been thought out in advance. Everything must be made ready in advance so that there will be no hesitation, no delays, no lost motion in proceeding from the initial formation to the final dismissal of the organization.

Men will graduate from the recruit class as soon as is consistent with a fairly good understanding of the rudiments of soldiering.

Recruits will be drilled, in a separate squad, under a competent non-commissioned officer. This training must be intensive, with frequent rests. This is the period when the soldier's future attitude to the service will be largely formed. Much will depend upon the appearance and example set by the instructor and the impression of knowledge, neatness, alertness, patience, and "snap" he makes upon the recruit.

During the period of recruit instruction they will be classified, as soon as possible, for the particular duty they seem best qualified for, or for which their avocation in life would best fit them; bearing in mind that a man does his best work when he is doing that which he wants to do and is most interested in. For this purpose recruits can be divided into three classes: those to be trained to become (1) specialists, (2) motor or tractormen, and (3) cannoneers.

When first enlisted the recruit should be properly and if possible completely equipped. The uniform, if necessary, should be altered so that it fits the wearer. First impressions count and no soldier can be smart and alert in an ill-fitting uniform.

No special time should be assigned in the drill schedule to the subject of discipline and control of men; it being assumed that practical instruction under this head will be given at all drills and assemblies.

Thirty (30) minutes of the last drill period of each month will be devoted to the ceremony of inspection. The time is so limited that the organization commander will necessarily have to use every officer and competent non-commissioned officer. The time allotted is not sufficient to instruct in this ceremony and to properly inspect the material. It is expected that inspections will be made, in so far as is consistent with other duties, during drills, and as competent sergeant-instructors and caretakers are provided by the government, at such other times as may be necessary, in order that all material that is in use will be inspected at least once a month, and all material not in use at least once in every three months, except where stores are kept in original packages and in the case of "war supplies."

The armory drill year will begin with the second assembly after returning from the annual encampment. The first assembly, after returning from camp, should be used for a critique, to call attention to the shortcomings of the organization as evidenced by the work in camp.

The organization commander should prepare a schedule for progressive instruction for at least three months in advance, having in view the work for the year, and submit same to the instructor for his modification or approval.

The following subjects should be covered in the various schools and at the drill assemblies:

Officers:

Army regulations.

Special duties pertaining to their office.

Care of material.

The Battalion or Battery commander, as the case may be, is directly responsible for the training of the junior officers and the enlisted personnel under him.

Subjects should be assigned each instructor, officer or non-commissioned officer, who should thoroughly familiarize himself with the subject matter assigned to him before attempting to impart instruction therein. The program for succeeding drills should be posted where all may see, well in advance, what is to be done at stated drills and reference should be made as to where the subject matter of the instruction for that assembly period can be found in the text book, and all should be encouraged to read and study it carefully.

The following schedule is a guide for the division of the work for a year. It is based on a minimum of forty-eight (48) drills of one and one-half hours ($1\frac{1}{2}$) each, totaling seventy-two (72) hours armory instruction, and at least fifteen (15) days field training of eight (8) hours per day, totaling one hundred and twenty (120) hours field instruction; total minimum instruction period one hundred and ninety-two (192) hours. The subjects enumerated herein must be covered:

33. D. OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN OF THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS.

The officers and men of this important branch of the National Guard whether it be in State or Federal service, should be proficient in the practical and technical details of their duties as quartermasters in general and as to their immediate duties in particular. The fundamental principle upon which the training of the National Guard in State service in time of peace is based, is preparation for practical usefulness within the State and possible usefulness as a part of the active military forces of the nation. To this end, it is necessary that such officers and men of the National Guard prepare for their ultimate duties as Federal officers and soldiers, and reach the highest point of efficiency as such as soon as possible before an emergency arises. The fundamental text books for officers and men performing quartermaster duties are the portions of the Army Regulations pertaining to the Quartermaster Corps, the Manual for the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, and the Field Service Regulations. Other books pertaining to the various subjects involved in the work of this branch of the service are available for special study. A working knowledge of these, together with familiarity with the various forms used by the Quartermaster Corps, and the understanding that the application of sound business principles, is most desirable, and, in fact, necessary in effecting the work of the quartermasters in equipping, subsisting, paying, and transporting the military forces, and, with the additional factor of intense interest and industry, will promote success for the individual officer or enlisted man of the Quartermaster Corps, as well as for the organization for which he is a part of the system of providing. A quartermaster should be proficient in the theoretical and practical details of procuring military supplies, equipment and stores, of seeing that proper care is taken of this property after it has been obtained, of seeing that the prescribed methods of recording and accounting for such property are properly applied. Even though in a given instance, such work should not be the immediate duty of an officer or enlisted man of the quartermaster corps, he should, at least, understand the system. He should know in detail how to dispose of the accountability or responsibility for such property if it should be lost, damaged, destroyed, or become unserviceable. If such should be his immediate duty, he should see that his organization is as thoroughly equipped as it is possible for him to effect by conscientious effort. It is vitally necessary that all concerned in acquiring or issuing military equipment and stores should be familiar with the various forms involved, and in these matters, as in matters concerning the handling of funds and payment of troops, a perfunctory filling out of a set of such forms will not produce the desired results unless the student has explained to him, and understands the reason and business or military principle involved in each step in the procedure and each statement of fact called for by the forms. This involves practical study and instruction and should not be considered as merely routine.

A quartermaster should be prepared to act as a government disbursing officer and should have a basic knowledge of the accounting principles of the Federal government, considerable of which information may be obtained from the Manual for the Quartermaster Corps above referred to and by reference to the Decisions of the Comptroller of the United States Treasury. Practical instruction should be given on the subject-matter of public vouchers, abstracts of disbursements, accounts current, receipts, and other forms used in public accounting.

A quartermaster should be familiar with the forage requirements for animals, the care of such animals and their proper use. He should be prepared to intelligently handle the acquirement and issue of fuel to organizations in the field. He should be able to intelligently arrange for the movement of troops and impedimenta, particularly on emergency notice. The practical knowledge of methods of packing of equipment for transportation, either by animal-drawn, motor-drawn, railway or water transportation, should be part of his instruction. He should understand the procedure for subsisting troops in the fields and while traveling.

The most important duty in this, as in other branches of the service, is to get results, promptly and thoroughly. The forces must be fed, clothed, equipped, transported, and paid, and the Quartermaster Corps should be trained to do this. The established system of procedure for effecting these objects in the Army of the United States has been adopted with a view to efficiency, and the National Guard in State service is to be trained in the use of the same methods and forms as those in use by the Army, so that, as the result of such training, the National Guard, when transferred into Federal service, will be prepared to immediately function as a part of the National forces, and the instruction and training of the quartermasters of the National Guard should be especially conducted along these lines.

34. E. MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

It is the duty of instructors to provide themselves with a complete set of official publications of the War Department, pertaining to their duties as well as a set of blank forms authorized for the use of the sanitary troops, National Guard.

The following publications will be required in connection with armory insurrection of sanitary troops.

1. Manual for the Medical Department, 1916, corrected to June 15, 1918.
2. Drill Regulations and Service Manual for Sanitary Troops, 1914.
3. Elements of Military Hygiene (Ashburn) latest edition.

4. Army Regulations, 1913, with Changes.
5. Field Service Regulations (corrected to April, 1917).
6. War Department G. O. No. 23, 1912 (methods of correspondence).
7. Manual Physical Training.
8. Standards of Physical examination for entrance into the Regular Army, National Guard, and Organized Reserves as published in Army Regulations No. 40-105, June 20, 1921.

9. Handbook for the use of the Hospital Corps (Mason) latest edition.

Of the publications listed, one copy of Drill Regulations and Service Manual for Sanitary Troops should be procured for issue to each enlisted man of the Sanitary Troops, one of each of the publications to each officer with the exception of the last named, Mason's Handbook for the use of the Hospital Corps, of which four copies for each sanitary detachment and nine copies for each sanitary unit will be sufficient.

INSTRUCTION FOR MEDICAL DETACHMENTS AND ORGANIZATIONS.

Instruction should be as practical as possible with a view to fitting all concerned for actual service in the field in time of war. It should be borne in mind that one of the objects of instruction to officers and noncommissioned officers is to make them good instructors.

RECRUIT INSTRUCTION.

- (a) Articles of War.
- (b) Military Discipline and Courtesy.
- (c) Uniforms and Instruction in use, care and adjustment of personal equipment.
- (d) Personal Hygiene and Care of Feet.

17. Water purification.
18. Clerical work and military correspondence.
19. Mess management.
20. Materia medica and pharmacy.
21. Minor surgery.
22. Nursing and ward management.

LECTURES.

- (1) Sanitary Detachments on duty with line organizations.
- (2) The Regimental Hospital.
- (3) The Ambulance Company, function, operation and equipment.
- (4) The Field Hospital, function, operation and equipment.
- (5) The Sanitary Train.
- (6) Station for slightly wounded.
- (7) Examination of recruits, finger printing and outline figure card.
- (8) Disease prevention and field sanitation.
35. F. Judge Advocate General's Department.
- G. Adjutant General's Department.
- H. Ordnance Department.
- I. Inspector General's Department.

Whenever State Staff Corps and Department officers are required by the State to perform military duties pertaining to their Staff appointments, and an investigation of their work shows that the amount involved is more than equivalent to forty-eight instruction periods of one and one-half hours each, it will be considered sufficient armory instruction, except in those grades, where attendance at drill is required by law for purposes of pay. Where not sufficient military duties are required of the officers of the State Staff Corps and Departments, it is essential that the provisions of paragraph 492, National Guard Regulations, be complied with; this requires an appearance in uniform at an armory, if one is conveniently located near the residence or place of business of the State Staff officer. The Instructor will in such cases conduct practical work for officers of these Departments, keeping in mind the provisions of paragraph 302 (H, I, K, L, and M), National Guard Regulations. Where attendance at an armory is impracticable correspondence work may be substituted.

In addition, the officers of the Inspector-General's Department should be familiar with War Department Document No. 403 "A guide for the use of officers of the Inspector-General's Department."

Officers of the Adjutant General's Department should, in addition, be familiar with Special Regulations No. 57.

Officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department should be familiar with the new manual for Courts Martial and new Articles of War.

As a general rule the Instructor will bring to the attention of the State Staff and Department officers the latest publications of the Regular Army concerning the performance of duty in their respective Staff Corps.

It is the desire of the Militia Bureau that the procedure followed in the regular establishment be adopted in time of peace as far as possible, by the National Guard.

The duties of the officers of the Ordnance Department include supervision of rifle practice and they should be familiar with the latest procedure adopted in the Regular Army.

CIRCULAR LETTER

No. 80

From: The Chief, Militia Bureau

To: The Adjutants General of all States, Territories of Hawaii and Porto Rico and the District of Columbia Militia.

Subject: Army Drill Pay Rolls.

In cases where men are transferred from one organization to another during a semi-annual period, the following information should be furnished by the Commanding Officer of the organization from which the man was transferred to the Commanding Officer of the organization to which the man was transferred:

- (a) Statement in duplicate, giving name of soldier, grade (if promoted or demoted, date of effectiveness and authority for same), number of drills attended per month or fraction thereof, (if promoted or demoted, date and number of drills attended each grade); certificate as to number of drills prescribed each month and fraction thereof from date of last payment to date of transfer.
- (b) Date organization was Federally recognized.
- (c) Number of drills for which soldier was paid for the period ending June 30th.

NOTE: On all certificates covering transfers during period of July 1 to December 31 of any calendar year, it will be necessary to include this information in order that the General Accounting Office may readily determine whether the soldier was paid for a greater number of drills than is provided for in Section 110, National Defense Act as amended; namely, a maximum of 60 drills in one year.

4. Second Lieut. Lyle E. White, 150th Infantry, having tendered his resignation, same is accepted. Lieut. White ceases to be a member of the West Virginia National Guard, to date December 17, 1921.

By order of THE GOVERNOR,

JOHN H. CHARNOCK,

Adjutant General.

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Charleston, Dec. 30, 1921.

General Order

No. 27

1. The following drill schedule for the 13 weeks' period February 1—April 30, 1922, is published for the information and guidance of the units of the West Virginia National Guard.

2. It is for the 13 weeks following the schedule published in General Orders No. 15, Oct. 22, 1921, and the same close adherence to its provisions is enjoined.

3. Units that have not completed the instruction directed in the first schedule, will complete that before commencing work under this schedule.

4. The Howitzer and Machine Gun Companies will follow this schedule with the following exceptions:

(a) Where Preliminary Target Practice drills are prescribed they will use the period for Nomenclature, mechanism, dismounting and assembling the 37mm gun and the 3 in. mortar and the Browning Machine Gun, Cal. 30, respectively. (See Manuals for these special weapons.)

5. Two noncommissioned officers, musicians or privates will be instructed in signalling (Wig Wag) and two in Semaphore signalling, preferably one NCO and one musician in each.

6. The inspection period is followed with a 10 minute review in the School of the Soldier. This should be confined to the foot movements entirely, and should be given in as rapid succession as the state of instruction will warrant; starting with the facings, right, left and about, for about three minutes, give the command for a facing as soon as the preceding one has been completed, always providing that it has been executed correctly, with precision and snap. Then the marchings, forward, by the flanks, to the rear, half step, mark time, and back step, in similar manner. Do not give them in set order but vary the successive movements, thereby developing alertness. This drill, if given sharply, requires the greatest concentration and prepares the men to absorb the greatest amount of subsequent instruction.

7. The last five minutes of the Infantry drill should be devoted to execution of the Manual of arms, and should be as energetic and snappy as that specified in Par. 6. A Company that can execute these based drills smartly and accurately is disciplined, and when other instruction is preceded by it the men's minds are alert and absorb the most. It is also a fundamental principle to conclude all instruction with smart close order drill, the Manual of Arms probably being the best, to restore the impression of precision and exactness, which it creates.

Charleston, Feb. 4, 1922.

General Order
No. 10.

1. The following extracts from the approved draft of the new National Guard Regulations are published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

"The word 'drill' will not necessarily be restricted to tactical evolutions, but it may be interpreted to include practical and theoretical instruction in duties pertaining to the special arms or in such subjects as guard duty, care of the rifle, equipment, and special arms, instruction in tent-pitching, combat, patrols, outposts, minor tactics, problems on the sand table, field fortifications, talks on marches, camps, care of the feet, sanitation, first aid to the injured, making and breaking camp, packing wagons, railroad transportation, care of animals, making of pay rolls, military courtesy and customs of the service, the Articles of War, gallery practice, instruction and examination of gunners, rated men, and non-commissioned officers.

A company may participate in an outdoor exercise or maneuver and take credit for the same as an armory drill, provided that such exercise or maneuver shall be of not less than one and one-half hours' duration.

Credit for not to exceed one assembly for armory drill in any one week and not to exceed eight such credits in any one calendar year may be given to a soldier for participation in target practice on a rifle range: Provided. That the target practice shall be supervised by a commissioned officer, and that not less than eight enlisted men of the same company shall be present and engage in target practice for a continuous period of not less than one and one-half hours, and: Provided further, That the above provisions shall not apply to camps of instruction for field training or for camps for rifle practice."

By order of THE GOVERNOR,
JOHN H. CHARNOCK,
Adjutant General.

G. O. No. 11.
STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA.
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Charleston, Feb. 11, 1922.

General Order

No. 11.

1. The target season of the West Virginia National Guard will commence February 15th and close December 31st.

2. All National Guard Organizations will fire Course "A" and a report of target firing will be forwarded to the Chief of the Militia Bureau, as soon as practicable after the close of the practice season, but not later than March 31st of the following year, through this office.

3. All firing will be held only after thorough instruction and preparation. In the preparation, strict attention will be paid to sighting and aiming, position, trigger squeeze and rapid fire exercise; and an examination on these points before the commencement of gallery practice with the 22 Calibre Rifle, will be held, and all those permitted to fire will qualify in gallery practice course before being taken on the range.

4. Gallery qualification will be followed by instruction practice in Course A. This instruction practice may be fired as often as is necessary to obtain proficiency.

5. All firing will be under the supervision of a commissioned officer and qualified coaches, and at the beginning of the course all firing will be prone and with the sand bag rest, and strict attention given to have the soldier assume the proper position; that, the trigger is squeezed and not pulled, or jerked; that there is no flinching; that the firer calls the shot each time he fires; that he keeps his score book correctly.

6. Safety Rules: The following will be strictly enforced.

- (a) During target practice keep bolt open at all times until on the firing point ready to fire.
- (b) Open bolt before leaving firing point.
- (c) Load only when ready to fire.

- (d) Clip loading forbidden for slow fire. Use rifle as single shot except in rapid fire.
- (e) Sighting and aiming forbidden behind firing points.
- (f) Firing forbidden before command "commence firing."
- (g) Firing forbidden after command "cease firing."
- (h) When flag is up, cease firing, lock piece, elevate muzzle.

7. Gallery Practice.

The course in Gallery Practice will consist of the following:

Firing on 50 or 75 foot ranges with 22 calibre ammunition. Course fired as often as is necessary to qualify.

TABLE I.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
50 or 75 ft.	No limit	10	Aa	Prone with sandbag
5 or 75 ft.	do	10	Aa	Prone.

TABLE II.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
50 or 75 ft.	No limit	10	Aa	Sitting
50 or 75 ft.	do	10	Aa	Kneeling
50 or 75 ft.	do	10	Aa	Standing

8. Course A is as follows:

Instruction practice.

TABLE I—Slow Fire.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
200	No limit	10	A	Prone with sandbag
300	do	10	A	do
500	do	10	B	do
600	do	10	B	do

TABLE II—Slow Fire—To be fired twice.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
200	No limit	10	A	Prone without sandbag
300	do	10	A	do
500	do	10	B	do
600	do	10	B	do

1. Two sighting shots (2 s. s.) will be fired at 600 yards.

TABLE III—Slow Fire.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
300	No limit	10	A	Sitting
300	do	10	A	Kneeling
200	do	10	A	Standing

TABLE IV—Rapid Fire.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
200	1 minute	10	D	Sitting or kneeling from standing
300	1 minute, 10 sec.	10	D	Prone from standing
300	1 minute, 20 sec.	10	D	Prone

Each 10 shots in Table IV are to be fired in two scores of two clips each, the clips in each case to contain range dummies and loaded cartridges mixed. After Tables I, II, III, and IV have been fired such additional practice will be held as time and ammunition allowance will permit. It is best to alternate slow and rapid fire at the ranges and in the positions laid down for the course. Usually more rapid-fire practice is needed than slow-fire practice.

The firing of rapid-fire scores with mixed range dummies will not be limited to the first time over the course. This form of practice is excellent training and should be carried on until a few days before firing the record course. It is good instruction to precede each full score of 10 loaded cartridges by a score of two clips in which 5 range dummies and 5 loaded cartridges are mixed.

The instruction practice prescribed in Tables I, II, III and IV need not be followed rigidly when unusual local conditions make a change advisable in the opinion of the officer in charge of the firing. The general plan as outlined in these table will, however, be followed.

9. Record practice.

TABLE V—Slow Fire.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
200	No limit	10	A	Standing
300	do	10	A	5 Standing, 5 kneeling
500	do	10	B	Prone
600	do 2 s. s.	10	B	Prone with sandbag

1. Two sighting shots will be fired at 600 yards.

TABLE VI—Rapid Fire.

Range	Time	Shots	Target	Position
200	1 minute	10	D	Sitting or kneeling from standing
300	1 minute, 10 sec.	10	D	Prone from standing
500	1 minute, 20 sec.	10	D	Prone

No "coaching" of any nature will be allowed during the firing of the Record Course.

Qualifications on Record Course.

Expert riflemen 293 or over, sharpshooter 275 or over, marksman 240 or over; unqualified under 240.

Long-range practice.

After an organization has completed record firing in Course A, men who have qualified as expert riflemen will take the long-range practice.

The course will be fired at least three times, twice for instruction practice and once for record. In order to obtain the maximum instruction in the effects of weather conditions the course will not be fired more than once on any one day. Long-range practice need not be fired during the target-practice season, but may be fired at any time before the end of the target year.

10. Target C.—Slow fire.

Range	Shots	Position
800	10	Prone
1,000	10	Prone

Two sighting shots will precede each score of 10 shots.

This practice will be conducted as prescribed for slow fire.

Instruction will be given in the effect of wind, light and temperature, and the value of small changes in elevation and windage at long ranges.

Long-range firing does not effect a soldier's qualification, but a record of the scores made will be included in the company target report.

By order of THE GOVERNOR,
JOHN H. CHARNOCK,
Adjutant General.

G. O. No. 12

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA.

Co. F, 150th Inf., Mt. Hope, March 16-1922.

Co. A, 150th Inf., Beckley, March 17-1922.

Co. B, 150th Inf., St. Albans, March 20-1922.

Co. D, 150th Inf., Charleston, March 21-1922.

Co. C, 150th Inf., Charleston, March 22-1922.

Co. A, 104th M. P. Bn., Parsons, March 24-1922.

2. Major T. C. Davis will accompany the U. S. Inspector and make the inspection for the State of West Virginia.

3. The companies will be paraded in woolen o. d. uniforms complete with overcoat or slicker if issued. The equipment carried by the enlisted personnel will include the following: Rifle or revolver, belt cartridge, canteen cover, canteen, bayonet scabbard, bayonet, first aid pouch, first aid packet, haversack and pack carrier.

4. The Company inspection will be followed by a drill inspection to include all training directed under G. O. No. 15, 1921.

5. Inspection of the administration papers and company property will be made either before or after the Company inspection as best suits the convenience of the inspector and the property inspection will be followed by an inspection of the property records.

6. All records will be complete and be presented to the inspector on arrival at company station.

7. If the original packages received from the depots including overcoats, slickers, shelter halves, blankets, mess kits etc., have not been broken, they may be presented to the inspector in that condition and credit will be given.

8. The property not in original packages will be arranged in bundles of 10 with a slip of paper on top giving the number of articles in the stack and care exercised that all property is easily accessible and in position to be rapidly checked. The files of the physical examination papers, enlisted papers, service records, including form 637, record of vaccination, including typhoid and para-typhoid innoculation and identification record cards must be complete for each man and without errors. The inspector is required to report any and all deviation from the above at any inspection (See N. G. Regulations Par. 346). Should any of these record cards not have been furnished to you, have the inspector make a note of that fact, so that the company's record will be clear. The field desk must contain extra morning reports, duty rosters and sick reports ready for use if the unit is called out for service. The property records must be kept ready for inspection at all times; the Regulations stating that these records are subject to inspection at irregular intervals and that an inspector may drop in upon you at any time.

9. The travel, per diem and subsistence enjoined is necessary in the public service.

General Order

No. 32.

With profound sorrow this department announces the death of Colonel Harry Rankin Smith, former Commander of the First West Virginia Infantry, at Clarksburg, West Virginia, July 15, 1922.

Colonel Smith was a patriotic citizen, and an enthusiastic National Guardsman, beloved by all those with whom he came in contact, and especially by those he commanded, among whom was our present Governor, Hon. Ephraim F. Morgan. He was a genial and kindly man, frank and sincere and very considerate of the welfare of his subordinates.

Colonel Smith, son of Ashabel G. and Anna Rankin Smith, was born in Uniontown, Pa., February 22, 1870. The family moved to Clarksburg the same year. He was reared in Clarksburg; attended the West Virginia University and was a member of the Cadet Corps. On his return to Clarksburg he helped to organize Company "K," W. V. N. G., served as Sergeant, 2nd Lieutenant, 1st Lieutenant and Captain. In May, 1898, Company "K" was taken into United States' Service for the Spanish American War, as Company "D," 1st W. Va. Volunteers, with Captain Smith in command. At the close of the War the Company returned to Home Station and the National Guard was reorganized with Captain Smith promoted to Major, January 7, 1899; promoted Lieutenant Colonel, January 10, 1901, and filled this assignment until after the death of Colonel Clarence L. Smith, when he was promoted to Colonel, June 1, 1901, and commanded the regiment until 1912, when, because of ill health, he resigned. His interest in the National Guard and military affairs never ceased. He attended numerous Camps where the regiment was stationed and on the outbreak of the World War entered the Officers' Training Camp at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, but the training was too strenuous for his bodily strength and compelled him to return home.

Both the old and new members of the West Virginia National Guard realize that they have lost a true and faithful friend, and join his relatives and friends in mourning their loss.

JOHN H. CHARNOCK,
Adjutant General.

General Order

No. 33.

1. The Field training of the West Virginia National Guard for 1922, will be held at Camp Knox, Kentucky, from August 6 to August 20, inclusive.

2. Transportation:—Railway transportation will be furnished by the U. S. P. & D. Officer. The transportation requests will be executed in duplicate, and the duplicate turned in to the U. S. P. & D. Officer on arrival at Camp Knox. Transportation in and around Camp will be furnished by the Camp Quartermaster. No transportation will be taken to Camp.

3. Uniforms:—Troops will be completely uniformed (except overcoats) including both wool and cotton o. d.; two pair shoes, and have at least two changes of underwear and three pairs woolen socks (government issued preferred). No uniforms or equipment will be issued at Camp Knox without special authority from Headquarters, Fifth Corps Area.

4. Records:—All organizations will take to Camp all their records, training manuals and a supply of stationery.

5. Equipment:—All units will take to Camp Knox their personal equipment and arms as authorized by Organization and Equipment Table including one pounders, Stokes-mortars, machine guns, carts and harness, but excluding escort wagons and harness, rolling kitchens and trucks. Tentage (except shelter tents) cots, bed-sacks, ranges and kitchen utensils will be left at Home Station.

6. Vaccination:—If possible all officers and enlisted men should be immunized against small pox and typhoid fever before going to camp. The commanding officer of each organization will cause a physical examination of the members of his unit, to ascertain the presence of contagious or infectious diseases, to be made by a competent Physician not more than forty-eight hours before entraining.

7. Ammunition will not be taken to camp.

8. Medical supplies will be furnished by the Camp Commander, in accordance with Par. 693-695, N. G. R. The Medical Officer with each section will purchase necessary emergency supplies for the trip from Home Station to Camp Knox.

By order of THE GOVERNOR.

JOHN H. CHARNOCK,
Adjutant General.

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Charleston, August, 25, 1922.

General Order

No. 37

1. The following schedule for the training of the West Virginia National Guard for the Armory Drill period ending December 31, 1922, is published for the guidance of all concerned. This scheme of instruction has been very carefully compiled and will result in marked improvement in the Company Instruction.

2. The limited time which can be devoted to drills demands that, in order for the maximum benefit to be derived from the time spent, all officers will carefully and thoroughly prepare for the work outlined, and then conscientiously follow the schedule. Any deviation from the program as set down will invariably upset the balance of training, and lessen the value of the drills.

3. For all drills and exercises prescribed there are instruction and reference books and pamphlets in the companies. These will be consulted and carefully followed.

4. In all cases in the schedule where the word 'company' is used, the word 'platoon' may be substituted if the number of men present for drill does not permit the formation of two or more platoons.

5. The inspection prescribed at the conclusion of each drill should be so arranged, utilizing the services of the junior officers of the company, as to enable the company commander to accurately determine the condition of the arms and equipment of the company.

6. Where it has not already been done, companies will be divided at once into permanent platoons, sections, etc., as provided in tables of organization; and these subdivisions should function as such throughout all drills.

7. Recruits should be given special instruction under the best available instructors, in the following subjects: School of the Soldier (without and with arms), Military Courtesy, Wearing of the Uniform, and the School of the Squad (where there are several under instruction at one time): and the company commander must use his discretion as to the time when they should be permitted to join the company in its drills and progress with it.

The Company Commander may designate from the entire company a demonstration squad of not to exceed 8 men to work on Machine Gun Drill during times when School of Soldier, of Squad, and of Company are prescribed. The purpose of this is to permit the selection of men who are fully qualified in these subjects, to receive additional Machine-gun Training with a view to qualifying them as better instructors for the remainder of the Company. Great care will therefore be used in their selection, and where possible the personnel of the squad will not be changed during the period up to December 31, 1922.

1. The following quotation from "The Washington Guardsman" is so revelent that an extract is quoted for your information, with the hope that the reading of it will produce a good effect throughout the National Guard:

"The underrating of the instaruction being given the National Guard today, and the overrating of service during the war, is not an uncommon fault among the former officers and enlisted men joining the Guard today. In a sense it is a loyalty to their old organizations and past service which is entirely praiseworthy, but it is retarding their progress now, and the sooner they can put aside the belief that they learned all that was to be known about the business of being a soldier overseas, or in the training camps in the United States, the better it will be for themselves and those associated with them in the National Guard now. Because the organization in which they happen to be now are not doing things the way they did during the war is no indication that what is being done today is wrong. In fact, the instruction being given members of the Guard is passed on to the Guardsmen by Regular Army instructors who are in touch with the most recent changes in warfare as worked out by experts, in this country. Much of the instruction that was given the men from this country overseas was borrowed from the French and British and applicable only to the conditions that were faced on the Western Front.

* * * * *

"There are a lot of us yet, despite our war service, who are recruits when our present fund of information is compared with the facts about the army game still to be learned."

2. The progress in military training was very seriously delayed after our great Civil War by reason of the fact that many people who engaged in that war were satisfied with everything connected with war was known to them, that no further progress was possible. We are in great danger of passing through a very similar condition at the present moment. Older officers of the Army now in service can testify that progress in the profession of arms was seriously blocked after the Civil War up until the nineties by reason of a feeling among the officers who participated in the Civil War that they could learn nothing more concerning the profession of arms. Every effort should be made to emphasize strongly the fact that the military profession is progressing; and, if our citizen soldiery is to stop at the methods taught during the great World War, they will be prepared only for a war that is past—for a war that is merely history; whereas their efforts should be concentrated in perfecting themselves for the WAR OF THE FUTURE.

3. It is believed this idea should be emphasized strongly in our citizen soldiery, without in any way deprecating the useful lessons which we learned during the great World War.

We must not stop but continue our efforts so as to keep apace with the military progress of other nations.

1. The following extract from the approved draft of the new National Guard Regulations is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

ENLISTED MEN OF THE NATIONAL GUARD IN CIVILIAN MILITARY TRAINING CAMPS.

(a) Enlisted men of the National Guard may enroll for attendance at any of the Civilian Military Training Camps; Provided, that not exceeding ten per centum of the enlisted strength of any National Guard organization may be, at the same time, so enrolled.

(b) For the purpose of complying with the conditions of paragraph ——— (qualification of officers for pay), commanding officers of any company may count as present, at all drills, such enlisted men of their respective organizations as are in attendance at Civilian Military Training Camps.

(c) Enlisted men of the National Guard, who are in attendance at a Civilian Military Training Camp, will be required to send their National Guard commanding officer a certificate from the Commandant of the Camp, to the effect that they were in attendance at the Camp during the period they are counted as present in accordance with the provisions of the preceding paragraph.

(d) Each pay roll will be accompanied by a certificate, of the commanding officer of the organization, containing the names of all those enlisted men who were counted as present but who did not attend organization drills, and the dates for which they were so counted, on account of their being in attendance at a Civilian Military Training Camp.

1. The following information, suggestions and comments as a result of the recent inspection by the Federal Instructor, are published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

(a) The Property Loan Record Cards must be kept up to date; i. e., all property received, as shown by shipping tickets, must be posted on the cards. Until a decision is received expendable articles, such as cleaning material, need not be taken up, where that has not already been done. Each class of property will be taken up—alphabetically—on separate groups of cards, and the class indicated at the top of each card, as, Quartermaster (one set for clothing and one for equipage), Ordnance, Signal, Engineer and Medical. The Shipping Ticket head will show to what class property pertains. The Shipping Ticket number will be entered on the cards in the column provided. If no S. T. number appears give it one, placing it conspicuously in the upper right hand corner of the S. T.

(b) Three copies of Receiving Report for each S. T. must be made out, two to be sent to the U. S. Property and Disbursing Officer and one attached to your file copy of S. T. Keep this file (S. T. & R. R.) separate, and free of additional copies and other excess papers.

(c) The "War Plans envelope," with its contents, will shortly be furnished you. This must be permanently kept in the field desk.

(d) A list of records, blanks, etc., which must be kept in the field desk will be furnished and is to be pasted on the lid separating the two compartments.

(e) The piece of rubber tubing with which each company is equipped is to be used (in 2 in. lengths) in putting the metal fouling solution into the bore of the piece. The rubber corks close the breech and the tubing is used in the muzzle. Use a funnel so not to get the solution on the outside of the rifle. No metal fouling solution will be used, except in the presence of a Commissioned Officer and care will be exercised to see that all solution is removed from rifle after use.

(f) The document file and correspondence book are kept in the same way as during the war. S. R. No. 57 has not changed the method.

(g) While Ammunition boxes and packing boxes are not charged it is advantageous to preserve them. After target practice shells (cleaned and decapped) should be shipped back in the ammunition boxes, and credit for additional ammunition is given both for shells and boxes. The packing boxes will be needed for packing extra clothing and other property when ordered from home station. Arms chests are charged and must be accounted for.

(h) The Company Council Book must show the complete account of all company funds, all transactions supported by proper vouchers. The company funds consists of all monies accruing to the company from any source whatsoever, and no other fund will be kept. If no council book is supplied one can be improvised by fastening together several sheets of paper and properly ruling them.

(i) The Individual Equipment Tags will be stamped with the Regimental number, the Company letter and the individual man's company number, in the order named. Example: 150 A 1. One of these tags will be fastened to each of the following articles of individual equipment:

Blankets, (2) in corner.

Shelter tent halves, lower, outside front corner.

Haversacks above the U. S.

Pack carriers above the U. S.

Cartridge Belts on first pocket (right) under (not on) flap.

Pistol Belts on extension near hook end.

First Aid pouches, on center of flap.

Coats (2) on upper left pocket, under flap, right edge.

Breeches (2) on waist band left of back seam.

Overcoats, under flap, near edge opposite 2nd button.

Raincoats, at edge opposite 2nd button.

These articles will be tagged when issued.

1. The following opinion of the Attorney General is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

"March 15, 1922.

General John H. Charnock,
Military Department,
Charleston, W. Va.

Dear Sir:

In your letter of the 3rd instant, you ask whether or not contributing members of the West Virginia National Guard are exempted by law from jury duty.

Replying thereto permit me to call attention to section 97 of chapter 18 of the code which provides that,

"Every commissioner officer and enlisted man of the National Guard of this state shall be exempt from jury duty."

Section 32, of said chapter 18, provides that able-bodied men of eighteen years or more may be enlisted in the National Guard for a term of three years, etc., while section 85 deals with contributing members and provides that in time of peace the officers commanding companies may enlist contributing members not to exceed one hundred and fifty, and that such members shall be subject to such contributions, dues and services as may be ordered by the respective organizations.

It will be observed that the enlisted men of the National Guard which are exempted from jury service are not any particular class of enlisted men, but "every enlisted man." Since there are two classes of enlisted men in the National Guard, those regularly enlisted under section 32 and those enlisted as contributing members under section 85, and the statute does not confine the exemption from jury service to any particular class of enlisted men, I am of the opinion that all enlisted men, whether those enlisted for regular service or those as contributing members, would be exempted from jury duty.

Very truly yours,

E. T. ENGLAND, Attorney General.

By R. DENNIS STEED, Assistant."

Circular

No. 6

1. The following letter from the Militia Bureau, is published for the information and guidance of all concerned.

2. In order to arrange for a more efficient method of fixing responsibility for the shortages in shipments made by agencies of the Quartermaster Corps to National Guard officers, the following instructions are published for the information and guidance of all concerned, including those officers who may be designated as surveying officers in such cases:

(a) Requisitions from National Guard Organizations, after approval by competent authority, are forwarded to designated supply depots for filling. At these depots shipping tickets are prepared for the articles called for on the requisition and are sent to the proper warehouses; there an employee selects from stock the articles called for on the shipping ticket and turns these articles together with the shipping ticket over to the packing section. A packer counts the articles and checks them against the shipping ticket; a second packer places the articles in containers and again checks them against the shipping ticket. A packing list is prepared and placed in the container which is then closed and the cover securely fastened. After the several packages have been properly marked as to consignee, weight, U. S. number, contents, et cetera, the packages with shipping tickets are turned over to the transportation section, and in this condition they reach the consignee.

(b) If packages are delivered by the carrier to the consignee in good order and condition, and show no indication of having been tampered with while in transit, it is reasonable to assume that the articles placed in the containers have reached the consignee. If there is any evidence or suspicion that packages were tampered with while in transit, a check must be made by the consignee and immediately upon receipt before accomplishing the bill of lading. If a discrepancy is found to exist between the marked contents of a package and the actual contents thereof, a proper notation should be placed on the reverse side of the bill of lading, showing the number of the package received in bad order and the shortages. If the carrier admits in writing responsibility for the shortage, a statement should be included to that effect on the bill of lading. The shortage should immediately be covered by a survey report. The proper recommendation of the Surveying Officer would be that carrier be held responsible for the shortage of the articles in question, giving the money value thereof and stating that the consignor and consignee be relieved from responsibility for this shortage, further accountability for same terminating.

(c) If the carrier declines to accept responsibility for the shortage, O. S. & D. Reports should be prepared after the notation as to damaged condition of package and the shortages discovered therein has been placed on the reverse side of the bill of lading. In such cases the consignor will furnish the proper affidavits and certificates establishing the fact that the articles marked on the outside of container were actually placed in the container. The certificates and affidavits of the consignee, and of the persons who witnessed the opening and checking of the container, present to the Surveying Officer the evidence necessary to determine whether or not the carrier is to be held responsible for the shortage. The Surveying Officer's recommendation will properly be the same as in the case where the carrier admitted responsibility for the shortage.

(d) It is important that the Commanding Officers of National Guard Organizations receiving a shipment of supplies, open containers in the presence of one or more witnesses promptly upon receipt, and check the contents against the packing list or markings on the containers, making a subsequent check of all articles received against the quantities shown on shipping tickets. This action should be taken before the shipping tickets are signed by consignee. If any shortages are discovered, O. S. & D. Reports should be prepared as required by National Guard Regulations. Notations to the shortage should be made on shipping tickets and the prescribed number of copies of O. S. & D. Report attached to the shipping tickets, which are to be returned to the consignor. If in such a case the consignor disapproves the O. S. & D. Report, and furnishes the consignee with certificates and affidavits to the effect that the articles listed on shipping ticket were actually placed in the containers, and the evidence submitted by the consignee shows beyond a doubt that the actual contents of a container does not agree with the marked contents thereof, the Surveying officer is unable to fix the responsibility for the claimed shortage and must so state in his findings and recommendation. A proper recommendation to be made in such cases would be that since the responsibility for the shortage can not be definitely fixed on consignor, carrier or consignee, the three parties named be relieved from responsibility and further accountability for the shortage.

3. Instructions will be issued to field agencies of the Quartermaster Corps, that in all cases where O. S. & D. Reports received are approved, admitting responsibility for a shortage, the articles in question must at once be forwarded to the consignee and covered by additional shipping tickets bearing a notation that the articles in question are furnished to cover shortages in previous shipment as reported on O. S. & D. Report. However, in all cases where discrepancies are found to exist between the quantity appearing on the shipping ticket and the quantity actually received by consignee, and the consignor submits evidence that he has shipped the articles listed on shipping tickets, it will become necessary for the National Guard Organization concerned to forward new requisitions for the articles claimed short.

Circular
No. 7

The following letter from the War Department, Militia Bureau, is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Militia Bureau,
Washington.

May 22, 1922.

Subject: Collections and Stoppages made against officers' and enlisted men's pay on account of lost, damaged or destroyed military property on armory drill rolls.

1. In connection with decision of the Comptroller General of the United States dated March 2, the following information is furnished to all concerned:

Where it appears from a report of survey, duly approved indicating that a member of the National Guard is indebted for lost, damaged or destroyed military property of the United States in the custody of the State of whose National Guard he is a member, such part of any pay due him as may be necessary to liquidate the indebtedness, should be paid by the disbursing officer paying the roll by check in favor of the Treasurer of the United States, for deposit in the Treasury of the United States as a credit of said State, Territory or District of Columbia accountable for said property, and as a part of and in addition to that portion of its allotment set aside for the purchase of similar supplies, stores, or material of war", unless the property concerned be condemned stores issued to the National Guard and not charged to its allotment, in which event it should be covered into the Treasury as a miscellaneous receipt, as required by section 88, of the Act of June 3, 116.

2. Where the amount of stoppage against the pay of an officer or enlisted man of the National Guard covers military property charged against the allotment of a State, the amount of the collection should be credited to the appropriation current when the collection is made, to be available "for the purchase of similar supplies, stores, or material of war."

3. If the loss is known prior to the submission of armory drill pay roll to the Finance Officer of the Corps Area, such roll should be accompanied by report of survey covering the lost property. If armory drill pay rolls have previously been submitted to the Finance Officer and such loss is reported by the Commanding Officer of an organization, the surveying officer should submit reports of survey to the finance officer for notation on the armory drill pay roll and the net amount due the officer or enlisted men should then only be paid him. If the loss is determined after check for armory drill has been drawn, but prior to delivery to the payee, such check should be returned to the finance officer who drew the same, for cancellation, accompanied by supplemental pay roll and report of survey to cover such loss.

4. All copies of reports of survey must be forwarded to this Bureau by the finance officer of the Corps Area, together with letter of notification relative to collections having been made by him. A copy of the letter forwarding such deposits to the Treasurer of the United States and requesting the latter officer to notify this Bureau when funds have been covered in should be furnished with the report of survey.

5. In the case of a deceased officer or enlisted man of the National Guard, only the net amount due for armory drill pay is authorized to be paid, but before such payment the facts should be reported to the General Accounting Office, War Department Division, as in other cases of pay due a decedent, for approval as to the proper payee. In the case of deserters, the amount of armory drill pay unpaid, or such part as may be necessary, may be applied to liquidate the deserter's indebtedness for lost, damaged or destroyed military property, belonging to the United States. If there be a balance due a deserter for armory drill pay after the payment of such indebtedness the amount thereof will be forfeited by the desertion and remain in the United States Treasury.

6. In all deposits into the Treasury of the United States, on whatever account, herein referred to, the Treasurer of the United States should be requested by the officer making such deposit to send a copy of the certificate or deposit to the disbursing officer of the Militia Bureau and the officer making the deposit should likewise give the disbursing officer for the Militia Bureau notice that such deposit has been made. The check making the deposit may be for the aggregate of all such items on the pay roll, and each item should be noted on the pay roll as included in said check.

7. In this connection it may also be stated that a disbursing officer is personally responsible for the deposit of his collections in the Treasury as provided by law and the settlement of accounts is facilitated by the prompt deposit of such collections. In view of this a disbursing officer is not permitted to transfer such collections to another finance officer for deposit.

Circular Letter No. 46.

May 24, 1922.

Subject: Transportation expenses of dependents, National Guard Officers attending Military Service Schools not authorized.

To: The Adjutants General of all States, Territories of Hawaii and Porto Rico and the District of Columbia Militia.

1. The subject of whether dependents of National Guard officers attending military service schools under the provisions of Section 99 of the Act of June 3, 1916, were entitled to transportation from the home station of the officer to the school and return thereto when such dependents accompany the officer to the school was submitted to the Comptroller General for a decision and in reply to such request the Comptroller General has ruled that such expenses are not properly chargeable against Federal funds.

2. In rendering his decision he called attention to the fact that Section 99 of the Act of June 3, 1916, supra, provides that the expenses of such members of the National Guard attending military service schools are to be paid "out of any National Guard allotment for funds available for the purpose", and that Section 12 of the Act of May 18, 1920, provides that when any commissioned officer having a wife or dependent child or children, is ordered to make a permanent change of station, the United States shall furnish transportation in kind, from funds appropriated for the transportation of the Army, to his new station for his wife or dependent child or children; that Section 119 of the Act of June 3, 1916, limits expenditure for carrying out the provisions of the Act relating to the militia moneys "as shall from time to time be appropriated for carrying them out." It is thus apparent that under the Act of May 18, 1920, funds appropriated for the National Guard are not available for the transportation herein questioned and that Section 119 of the Act of June 3, 1916, prohibits the use of funds appropriated for the Army to carry out any provision of the Act of June 3, 1916, relating to the Militia. He also stated that it is understood that Section 12 of the Act of May 18, 1920, had for its purpose the relief of personnel of the regular service, who, in the administration of those services, are periodically required to move from one station to another for duty. He also stated that National Guard officers attending service schools under Section 99 are not in federal service; they are not entitled to pay of their grades if above the grade of Captain and the very nature of the provision for attendance at service schools also indicated that such attendance is, and was designed to be of a relatively temporary nature, not relatively permanent as in the case of "permanent change of station" of an officer of the Regular Army and also that travel between an officer's home and a military station, in the case of an officer of the Regular Army is not a change of station within the meaning of Section 12 of the Act of June 18, 1920.

Subject: Limitations concerning organizations attending Field Training during the approaching field training season.

1. In issuing Circular Letter No. 29, April 10, 1922, which limited organizations to attend encampments to those in the service 30 days prior to said encampment, the Militia Bureau did not in any way desire to limit enlistments in those organizations which have already received federal recognition.

2. Enlistments may be made in any federally recognized unit up to the time of encampment, and provided said unit has received federal recognition thirty days prior to the encampment date the unit and all of its personnel are qualified for the encampment period. Enlistments made during encampment will be governed by Par. 932 (e), National Guard Regulations, 1922.

Circular
No. 11

The following letter from the War Department, Militia Bureau, is published for the information and guidance of all concerned.

1. The following substitution for Section III, G. O. No. 42, War Department, 1921, is about to be published in G. O. 24, W. D., 1922:

"Under the Act of Congress approved June 4, 1920, training and instruction of the Army in chemical warfare will be confined to the use of smoke, incendiary material, nontoxic gas for training and gas defense appliances, and will consist of the following:

1. The conduct of a special service school for the training and instruction in defensive chemical warfare for the following:

a. Selected officers and non-commissioned officers of the Chemical Warfare Service for duty in the Chemical Warfare Service.

b. Selected officers of combatant arms in the duties pertaining to defensive chemical warfare. Officers so instructed will be available as instructors in defensive chemical warfare in their own units.

c. Selected officers of the National Guard and Organized Reserves for duty as stated in subparagraph b.

2. Provision for chemical warfare personnel as instructors in defensive chemical warfare at general service schools and at certain special service schools as directed by the War Department.

3. Provision for personnel of the Chemical Warfare Service for representation upon the staffs of departments, corps areas, and divisions.

4. Provision for the availability of such chemical warfare personnel as are necessary for demonstration and for instructional purposes in defensive chemical warfare measures at special service schools.

5. Provision for suitable chemical warfare personnel for departments and corps areas during periods of field training for training and instructional purposes in defensive chemical warfare measures.

2. Training in Chemical Warfare was not included in the subjects prescribed in publication from this office dated August 18, 1921. However, in view of the order quoted in Par. 1, hereof, some modification in instructions issued appear to be necessary.

3. Training in defensive gas warfare will be limited for the present calendar year to demonstrations and to instruction to National Guard officers and selected enlisted men in the use of smoke, incendiary materials, and gas defense appliances. Only non-toxic gases will be used.

4. Since in most instances complete schedules have already been prepared and approved for the training of the National Guard, no changes are authorized except by authority of the Corps Area Commander and under the following conditions:

(a) Not to exceed two hours of the 15-day training period of any organization will be devoted to gas warfare.

(b) Wherever practicable the training in defensive gas warfare and the demonstrations will be held at such time as not to interfere with the schedules as at present prepared.

(c) The instruction given and the demonstrations held to be, in all cases, under the direct supervision of an officer of the Chemical Warfare Service, detailed by Corps Area Commanders.

5. The expense for smoke candles, incendiary materials and non-toxic gases to carry into effect the foregoing provisions will be limited to $2.00 per company or similar organization of the National Guard present at the camp and under instruction. Requisitions from Corps Area Chemical Warfare Officers based on the foregoing will be approved for supply by the Militia Bureau, the cost thereof to be charged against National Guard appropriations for the fiscal year, 1923.

Circular
No. 12

1. The following is published for the information and guidance of those concerned:

1. In accordance with a recent decision of the Comptroller General, and effective with the receipt of this communication, property which has become lost or destroyed by an officer or enlisted man of the National Guard may be dropped from the property records under a statement of charges, provided that at the time the charge is certified there are sufficient funds due the officer or enlisted man against whom the charge is made to cover payment for the articles charged for, and provided further that each copy of the statement of charges is accompanied by a statement signed by the officers or enlisted men against whom the charges are made, to the effect that the justness of the charges in each case is acknowledged and report of survey waived, and bears a notation, signed by the collecting officer, showing the several amounts collected.

2. An original and five copies of the statement of charges should be prepared and routed as follows:

1 copy retained by organization commander. Original and four copies forwarded to Property and Disbursing Officer.

Of the five received by the Property and Disbursing Officer, one copy will be retained, one copy forwarded to the Militia Bureau, and the original and two copies forwarded to the Corps Area Finance Officer.

3. The Corps Area Finance Officer will draw a check in favor of the Treasurer of the United States for the amount collected, and forward the check to that official for deposit in the Treasury of the United States as a credit to the State's allotment under the appropriation "Arming, Equipping and Training the National Guard, 19....." (fiscal year in which the deposit is made). The original copy of the statement of charges, bearing notation over the signature of the collecting officer of the several amounts collected thereon, will be returned to the United States Property and Disbursing Officer, who will make necessary notation on his retained copy and forward the original to the organization commander to be used as a voucher for dropping the property. One copy of the statement of charges bearing notation over the signature of the collecting officer of the several amounts collected thereon, together with a copy of the letter forwarding the deposit to the Treasurer of the United States, which should contain a request that the Militia Bureau be furnished with a copy of the certificate of deposit, will be forwarded to the Chief, Militia Bureau.

4. In case all the collections listed on the statement of charges are not made by the Corps Area Finance Officer, a statement giving the reasons for not making such collections will accompany the respective copies of the statement of charges forwarded to the Chief, Militia Bureau and the Property and Disbursing Officer.

GEO. C. RICKARDS,

Circular
No. 13

1. In accordance with changes in Regulations as announced by Circular Letter No. 73 MB, September 8, paragraph 2, Circular Letter No. 12, 1922, A. G. O., is amended to read as follows:

"2. An original and five copies of the statement of charges should be prepared and routed as follows:

1 copy retained by organization commander.

2 copies forwarded to the Property and Disbursing Officer.

The original and two copies fastened to the payroll on which the charge is made and transmitted therewith to the disbursing officer whose duty it is to make payment on the rolls.

Of the two copies received by the Property and Disbursing Officer, one will be retained for his information and the other forwarded to the Chief, Militia Bureau."

2. Strict compliance with this is enjoined.

Sept. 9, 1922.

Circular Letter No. 74.

Subject: Changes in National Guard Regulations, 1922.

To: The Adjutant General of all States, Territories of Hawaii and Porto Rico, and the District of Columbia National Guard.

“Paragraphs 211 and 212 are eliminated from National Guard Regulations and paragraphs 207 and 213 are changed to read as follows:—

“207. No person hereafter commissioned as an officer of the National Guard shall be federally recognized as such unless he first shall have successfully passed the tests as to his physical, moral and professional fitness which the President shall prescribe. The examination to determine such qualifications for commission shall be conducted by a Board of three commissioned officers appointed by the corps area commander from the Regular Army or the National Guard or both.

“213. When a vacancy occurs in any commissioned grade of the National Guard, except when in Federal service under draft, the appointing authority of the State where such a vacancy exists will appoint an eligible person to fill the vacant grade. Application for Federal recognition of officers so appointed, will be made in prescribed form by the adjutant general of the State direct to the Militia Bureau, accompanied by the following papers:

Oath of office on Form No. 337-1, A. G. O.

Copy of letter or order of appointment or promotion.

Copy of letter or order of assignment to an existing vacancy.

Sufficient information to show how vacancy was created.

Personal history on Form 108, M. B., unless this record on revised form (edition Jan. 16, 1922) has been previously transmitted to the Militia Bureau.

Physical examination on Form 95, M. B., unless

- (a) record of such examination made within six months from date of application is filed in the Militia Bureau, or
- (b) is being prepared for transmission with the record of the examining Board in the case.

Examination required by Section 75, National Defense Act, may be conducted at any time. A candidate for Federal recognition may be ordered by the adjutant general of the State to appear for examination either before or after date of appointment. The examination will be conducted by a board, appointed by the corps area commander in cooperation with the State authorities. Except for the examination of officers of the Medical Corps, an examining board shall consist of three officers—one from the Medical Corps, and two, chosen when practicable, from the corps, department, or arm to which the applicant being examined belongs, all of grade, if practicable, equal to or higher than that for which the applicant is being examined, and at least one of whom should, if practicable, be an officer of the Regular Army. In the examination of chaplains, one member of the board will when practicable, be a chaplain. Proceedings of each examining board appointed under the provisions of this paragraph will be forwarded to the Chief, Militia Bureau, through the corps area commander, who will indorse thereon his approval or disapproval and, in the event of disapproval, his reasons therefor."

c. Instructions.

This firing is to introduce the element of moving forward. The soldier halts to fire. Considerable loss of accuracy would result from firing while walking or running.

Men to fire are formed in line at the 50-yard point, each opposite his own target, pistols loaded, locked, and held at "Raise, pistol." The targets are edge to the front.

Four or five seconds after the pit is notified that all is ready at the firing point, targets are exposed twice for 5 seconds (when the automatic pistol is used), with an interval of 2 to 5 seconds between exposures, and the men fire one shot at each exposure. When the revolver is used the targets will be exposed only once, the time of exposure to be the same as for the automatic pistol and one shot to be fired at this exposure. An interval of 10 seconds is then allowed, during which time the line advances at double time to the 25-yard point by command of the instructor, alignment being maintained.

At the expiration of the 10-second interval the targets are exposed twice for 3 seconds, with an interval of 2 to 5 seconds between exposures. The men fire one shot at each exposure. An interval of 7 seconds is then allowed while the line advances as before at double time to the 15-yard point. At the expiration of the 7 seconds the targets are exposed three times for 2 seconds (when the automatic pistol is used) men fire one shot at each exposure. When the revolver is used the targets will be exposed twice, the time of exposure, the interval between exposures, and the number of shots fired at each exposure to be the same as for the automatic pistol.

Pistols are locked before moving forward and are held at "Raise, pistol" between shots. Visual signals should be used in the pit in order that the commands for exposing the targets may not be heard at the firing line. (C. P. M. No. 3, Mar. 31, 1922.)
